It's possible that we could include specific language review in this first meeting. However, as I mentioned to you earlier, the attorney has requested this meeting to discuss the cleanup proposals. This meeting then will include the removal action as well. Because he has requested this meeting, it would harm our negotiations if we refuse to meet with him because of an initial refusal to provide a redline/strikeout of our orders. He wants to discuss the cleanup proposals! It is important enough to meet with him and the contractors, establish in generalities that which we have in common and any differences that we have. Before the meeting is over, we will suggest a short schedule for finalizing the orders.

Because Gary and Chuck are available during the week of the 15th, I would like to re-schedule a meeting during that week. Before I finalize this plan, please confirm your availability for the week of the 15th, as well.

Thanks,

Gloria

Will we be talking about "redline" and "strikeout" versions of the remedial and removal orders? What is the purpose of the meeting? Thanks.

Hello,

By reply to this email, please give me at least three days within the next two weeks that you can be available to meet with Falcon.

Thanks,

Gloria
